I have worked as a specialised fight choreographer and actor for over 25 years which has assisted in honing a myriad of other skills. I can and have offered my services to film, television and stage productions as a military and historical adviser, often working closely with the renowned Richard Rutherford-Moore (historical advisor for ITV's Sharpe and Hornblower).

My pass-times run parallel with my professional life as I have performed historical shows and presented museum stands Living Histories all over the country as well as abroad. I have a keen interest in history that has lead me into many years of independent research, studying military and civil life in many and varied time periods. I have presented many lectures and displays for schools and I also help co-ordinate authentic Living History groups including; 'The War of the Roses Campaign Society', 'Company of the White Boar', 'Seathieves Pirate Association' and 'Stand and Deliver the Highwayman Association'.
